Tone

CARL SUE

Tone represents how much light falls on a subject and its surrounding area and is not to be confused with value. It is used to give the impression of volume in the subject and create depth when applied to a drawing. The use of tone can also be a means of expression to suggest mood and atmosphere. An example of all this can be found in the drawings of the French Neo-Expressionist painter, Georges Seurat (1859-1891).

Seurat was a very controlled painter using tone to capture form through light and shade and without the use of line. His drawings, like his paintings, were carefully considered with little spontaneity, but the results were always dramatic and striking. Seated Boy With Straw Hat, drawn in pencil and crayon in 1882, is an example of Seurat's use of pure tone.

Tone can be achieved in different ways depending on which medium you are using. Charcoal is very popular for formal drawings but all the other media produce their own formal effects. Experiment with as many as possible and you will get different results with each.
