In the summer of 2016, I met the love of my life on a bike ride across the country. We were both riding from San Francisco to New York City, and we met at a campground in Wyoming. We started talking, and we quickly realized that we had a lot in common. We both loved to travel, we were both passionate about our work, and we both had a great sense of humor.

We spent the next few days riding together, and we talked for hours about everything under the sun. We talked about our dreams, our fears, and our hopes for the future. We also talked about our relationships, and we realized that we were both looking for the same thing: a partner who would love us for who we are, and who would be there for us through thick and thin.

As we got closer to New York City, we started to talk about what would happen when the ride was over. We both knew that we didn't want to say goodbye, and we both wanted to continue our relationship. We decided to take a leap of faith and move in together after the ride.

We've been together ever since, and we're more in love than ever. We've traveled the world together, we've started a business together, and we've built a life together that we love. I'm so grateful for the bike ride that brought us together, and I can't wait to spend the rest of my life with my best friend.

Our Promise to Each Other

When we moved in together, we made a promise to each other that we would always put our relationship first. We promised that we would always be there for each other, no matter what. We promised that we would always communicate openly and honestly with each other. And we promised that we would always love each other unconditionally.

We've kept that promise to each other, and it's the foundation of our strong and lasting relationship.

Our Long Bike Ride

In the summer of 2018, we decided to take another bike ride together. This time, we rode from Seattle to San Diego. It was an amazing experience, and it was a great way to celebrate our love for each other and our love for adventure.

We rode for over 2,000 miles, and we saw some of the most beautiful scenery in the country. We camped under the stars, we cooked our meals over a campfire, and we met some amazing people along the way.

The bike ride was a challenge, but it was also one of the most rewarding experiences of our lives. It taught us a lot about ourselves, and it brought us closer together than ever before.

Our Future

We're not sure what the future holds, but we're excited to find out together. We're planning to get married next year, and we're looking forward to starting a family. We're also looking forward to continuing our travels and adventures together.

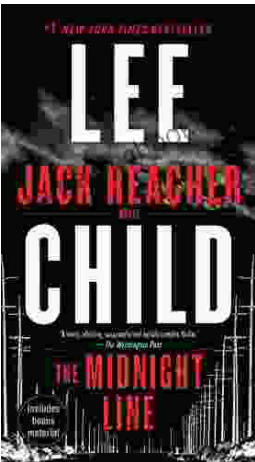

No matter what the future holds, we know that we'll always have each other. We're best friends, lovers, and partners, and we're committed to making our relationship last a lifetime.
