"A gripping account of heroism and sacrifice." - *The New York Times

"A powerful and moving memoir that will stay with you long after you finish reading it." - *The Washington Post

In this unforgettable memoir, Hershel "Woody" Williams, the last living Medal of Honor recipient from World War II, shares his extraordinary story of heroism and sacrifice during the Battle of Iwo Jima.

On February 19, 1945, Williams and his fellow Marines landed on the shores of Iwo Jima, one of the bloodiest battles in American history. For three days, they fought against overwhelming odds, facing relentless Japanese attacks and treacherous terrain.

During the battle, Williams witnessed unimaginable horrors and lost many of his closest friends. But amidst the chaos and carnage, he also displayed incredible bravery and determination.

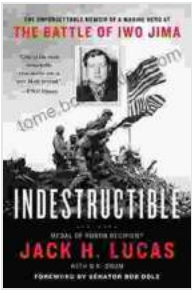

On the fourth day of the battle, Williams' unit was pinned down by heavy Japanese fire. With no other options, Williams charged into the enemy lines, single-handedly destroying seven Japanese pillboxes and killing dozens of enemy soldiers.

For his extraordinary heroism, Williams was awarded the Medal of Honor, the nation's highest military decoration. He is the last living recipient of the Medal of Honor from World War II.

In this powerful and moving memoir, Williams shares his firsthand account of the Battle of Iwo Jima and the aftermath of the war. He writes about the horrors he witnessed, the sacrifices he made, and the lessons he learned about courage, resilience, and the true meaning of heroism.

This is the unforgettable memoir of a true American hero. It is a story that will inspire you, move you, and stay with you long after you finish reading it.
